Scholarship Handbook

SCHOLARSHIP HANDBOOK

Who's eligible for scholarships?

YOU ARE!

But where to start ??

- 1) Start by looking through this handbook for scholarships to apply for. There are many local, apprenticeship, post-secondary, provincial and national scholarships.
- 2) Places to look for scholarships: your provincial government, your (or your parents) employer or union, clubs or associations that you (or your parents) belong to, as well as businesses, organizations and interest groups who promote awards or bursaries.
- 3) The information in this booklet is not a complete guide of what scholarships, grants and bursaries are available. Check out the websites listed on the following page.
- 4) There is A LOT of money out there for students, and this handbook does not contain anywhere close to all of the scholarships, bursaries, or awards available. It takes HARD WORK and TIME to hunt down other scholarships, awards and bursaries. Don't feel that because your marks are not high enough you will not qualify—there are awards available for students entering particular fields of study, athletic, leadership, community service or bursaries based on financial need, etc.
- 5) At the time this booklet was created, to the best of our knowledge, all the information was correct. However always check the websites for the most up to date information.

So what is the difference between Scholarships, Bursaries, Grants and Loans?

Scholarships - money that does not have to be repaid and is often based on some sort of excellence. Some scholarships are one-time cheques while others are money provided for each semester or year. They can also differ in that some are paid directly to the student and some are paid directly to the institution the student will attend.

Bursaries - money you do not have to pay back and is usually based on financial need or academic achievement.

Grants - money that you do not have to pay back and is often given for a specific purpose or based on financial need or special circumstances.

Student Loans - money that must be repaid, with interest (the rate charged for borrowing the money) within a defined period of time. Student loans are usually interest-free while you are in school. After your Period of Study End Date, you are usually given a 6 month grace period before you have to start payments.

Timeline for Scholarships

OCTOBER – NOVEMBER

This is the “kick-off” of the scholarship season for the following school year.

DECEMBER — APRIL

These months are really the “high season” of scholarships. There are millions of dollars up for grabs throughout these months. Deadlines seem to be evenly spread throughout these months. Just know, this is prime scholarship time and you should certainly be working on them during these months.

MAY — AUGUST

These months are the “final stretch” months where everyone is rushing to find final dollars for the fall.

Tips for Applying for Scholarships

1. Get Motivated and Do Your Research

The first step to finding money to help pay for your post-secondary education is the will and motivation to take the time to search and apply for awards. This needs to come from within YOU. You have to be willing to put in the effort and the hours if you want to win money for school. Start as early as possible—even in Grade 11- by researching what's out there and when you need to apply so you are organized. An hour of working at Tim Horton's earns you $15.00, but an hour of applying for scholarships could earn you $5,000.

2. Look Around

High school guidance counsellors and university financial aid offices are obvious places to find scholarships, but they're not the only places. Other sources are local businesses such as credit unions and a parent's place of work or professional organizations they're members of. A good old-fashioned internet search is another too, but be careful, if somebody is asking you to pay to apply, it's probably not something you want to do.

3. Budget Your Time Effectively

The truth is, finding the best scholarships is time-consuming and writing an essay and gathering reference letters stops a lot of students from applying. Don't be one of those students. Set some time aside to look and apply.

4. Understand the Requirements

Read the eligibility requirements very carefully. If you are not sure what one of the requirements means, or if it applies to you, ask. It only takes a few minutes to ask questions, versus the time to write an essay for an award you can't win.

5. Highlight Your Strengths

While academic marks are one of the primary criteria, awards committees are looking for well-rounded students too. It's not just about checking all the boxes. Don't discount things you do that might seem mundane but actually show responsibility and maturity. Things like helping your elderly grandparents, or getting your siblings ready to go to school on a regular basis because your parents are working or you are responsible for getting up every morning to milk the cows.

6. Pay Attention to Detail

Just as important as picking the scholarships you are eligible for is making sure you supply everything required to be considered. Dot all the i's, cross all the t's, and in any essay questions, be sure to be very clear that you understand what they are looking for. Check spelling and grammar before submitting, and don't wait until the last minute to submit.

7. Don't Forget About the Smaller Awards

Applying for a $10,000 scholarship sounds better than applying for a $2,000 one, but remember the higher the value the more students who will probably apply for it. This is where it becomes important to go for the smaller awards. Five $2,000 scholarships equal one $10,000.

Common Mistakes Made When Applying for Scholarships

1. Not Reading or Following the Instructions

- Read the requirements carefully before you begin and recheck then again before submitting.
- Answer the questions clearly and answer every point.
- Be sure you do not exceed the maximum word count or are under the minimum count.
- Try to include keywords from the question in your answer.
- If they ask for references, make sure you include them.

2. Not Personalizing Your Application

- Scholarship committees want to know about you and your experiences.
- Personalizing your response shows your individuality.
- Use specific examples from your life to demonstrate why you should receive a scholarship.

3. Giving Incorrect Contact Information

- Make sure your email, phone numbers and address are all correct. If they can't contact you, they can't give you the scholarship and it will go to someone else.

4. Uploading Files That are Incompatible

- Make sure to follow the instructions if they specify the type of file to use.
- If they don't specify the type of file to use, then the best option is PDF.
- If you use MAC or Google Docs, then convert your files before submitting them.

5. Failing to Proofread

- Before submitting, make sure to proofread your application.
- Print out a hard copy. Errors tend to be easier to spot on a piece of paper.
- Have someone else (friend, parent) review it.
- Use tools like Grammarly (which is free) to do a check.

6. Missing the Deadline

- Set reminders in your cell phone, or mark down on a calendar the deadline dates.
- Start your application early and send it off before the last day.
- Note what time zone the deadline time is in. If they don't say, assume it is EST.
